September brings two Red, White & Blue days. September 5th is Labor Day, a day to remember and celebrate all the people that work in the US. It gives workers a day of rest and it celebrates their contribution to the American economy. Labor Day is also a time to remember all those who worked over the past two centuries to make and build the United States. September 11th is Patriot's Day another day of remembrance.

Did You Know??

That the average corn has 800 kernels in 16 rows?

There is 1 corn silk for every corn kernel.

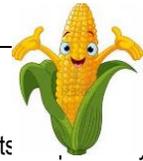

Americans consume 16.5 billion quarts of popped popcorn annually, more than anyone else in the world.

It takes 25 gallons of water to grow one ear of corn.

The U.S. produces about 40 percent of the world's corn.

Vegetable of the Month

It's Corn Season- Yay! !

Corn is a popular food that's known for its yellow color, its pleasant taste, and its ability to be eaten on the cob. It is often associated with summertime in general. While corn is normally viewed as a vegetable, it is actually a grain, and the exact classification of this mysterious food can be complicated. Corn can benefit your health, as it delivers B vitamins, folate, vitamin C, beta-carotene, protein and fiber. It also contains an abundance of carbohydrates, which can be a good thing to growing children. Carbohydrates that include fiber and nutrients are a source of long lasting energy that children's bodies need on a daily basis. Good carbs can come from pasta; rice, especially whole grain or brown rice; beans; whole grain breads; corn; sweet potatoes or potatoes; low-fat dairy and other fruits and vegetables.

My family loves to put fresh ears of corn on the grill, I add it to salads, casseroles for dinner. You might not know what all kinds of foods get made with corn. You recognize corn cob and popcorn. How about Corn Tortillas that are used for tacos and tostadas? We use corn oil and corn meal for baking. Corn syrup is a thick liquid sweetener used in candy making, and lots of other foods. Corn gets made into cereals: Corn Chex, Corn Flakes, Frosted Flakes, Corn Pops, Kix's, etc.

You might not know that corn is dried and fed to animals as food: horses, cows, pigs, chickens, lots of farm animals. So the milk you drink and the eggs you eat were made with corn. Corn has lots of good benefits to it and it tastes so good. No matter if you eat it straight off the cob, mixed in a salad, or in your breakfast cereal with milk, corn taste great.

Talk like a Pirate Day- Sept 19th

International Talk Like A Pirate Day is celebrated in more than 40 countries worldwide. It is a fun day that involves people talking like pirates. Some people dress in pirate costumes as well. It is celebrated among fans in countries such as Australia, Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States.

How much does a pirate pay to have his ear pierced? A buck an ear

Here are a few pirate words to work into your conversation

- Ahoy! - "Hello!"
- Avast! - Stop and give attention. Which today makes it more of a "Check it out"
- Aye! - "Why yes, I agree most heartily with everything you just said or did."
- Aye aye! - "I'll get right on that sir, as soon as my break is over."
- Arrr! - "Arrr!" can mean, variously, "yes," "I agree," "I'm happy", it can mean all kinds of things.
- Bilge rat – The bilge is the lowest level of the ship. It's loaded with ballast and slimy, reeking water. A bilge rat, then, is a rat that lives in the worst place on the ship. So this is a manly insult to use with your friends.
- Lubber – (or land lubber) this is the seaman's version of land lover. The word lubber becomes one of the more fierce weapons in your arsenal of piratical lingo. In a room where everyone is talking like pirates, lubber is ALWAYS an insult.
